Community Engagement

Making life more interesting for everyone in care homes

How to make the most of neighbourhood links.
My Home Life

Our vision is a world where care homes are great places to live, die, visit and work.

My Home Life is a UK-wide initiative, and social movement, that promotes quality of life in care homes for older people.

Our key activities include:

• Research – we work with the care home sector to find new ways of working and share the lessons learnt with others
• Enterprise – we deliver local packages of support to enhance care home leadership and encourage quality improvement
• Social Action – we engage locally and nationally with policy makers, practitioners and the public to better support care homes to deliver a shared vision of quality

How do we do this?

• We identify and share good practice
• We broker positive relationships
• We focus on being appreciative
• We work with and for care homes to make a difference

Impact

My Home Life is increasingly seen as the voice for quality for the care home sector. It is making a significant impact, delivering a range of benefits:

• Positive outcomes for care home managers from Leadership Support Programmes

Improved partnership-working between care homes and wider statutory agencies

• Acknowledged by providers as playing a significant role in turning round homes that are perceived by others to be failing
• Positive independent evaluation of our work in promoting relationship-centred commissioning and community visitor programmes

Promoted by

• Commission on Dignity in Care for Older People, Centre for Social Justice, National Assembly for Wales Health and Social Care Committee
• Government, as a “recognised quality scheme” for care homes in England

My Home Life is a UK-wide initiative that promotes quality of life and delivers positive change in care homes for older people. We work with care homes, statutory bodies, community organisations and others to co-create new ways of working to better meet the needs of older people, their relatives and staff. Our vision is a world where care homes are great places to live, die, visit and work; where care homes are:

• Supported to deliver to their potential
• Valued and trusted by those who work with them
• Cherished by their local communities

Community Engagement

This bulletin offers some ideas to help you make better links with your local community.

As we all know, being in a care home can feel very isolating. Everyone tries hard to give residents the time they deserve but sometimes there just aren’t enough hours in the day. When resources are short, bringing in the local community can make a real difference. Community engagement is anything that connects care homes with local people, charitable groups, businesses and clubs. Neighbourhoods can be a great resource for volunteers and activities for care homes and, equally, care homes have a wealth of knowledge and experience to share.

In this bulletin, you can find out what staff in other care homes are doing. Also, why not have a look at our Top Tips for developing more sustainable and fulfilling local connections?

By engaging more with your community you can help challenge the negative public perception of care homes and show people that they really are great places to live, work, die and visit!

Good luck with all you’re doing and plan to do in the future.

Very best wishes from the My Home Life Team

We are working to improve our own community engagement

Our community extends across UK borders to Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. We are keen to spread the good news about care homes and broaden our engagement as widely as possible.

Our Twitter feed is growing and we encourage you to join in. It’s a chance to learn, celebrate and also promote positive messages of the work going on in care homes.

You can be part of this too!
Please follow us and join the conversation at @MyHomeLifeUK

Our email address is info@Myhomelife.org.uk.
Please send pictures of your events and community activities so that we can include them on the website.

Our website is being re-vamped and will ready for launch in the Autumn. It will be more useful to everyone working in the care home sector as well as the public.

Good Practice Everywhere! – Great and Small!

“Small children from the local nursery school are teaming up with residents to plant flowers and vegetables and creating a sensory garden.”

Rae Murphy, Dalmellington Care Centre

“Two of our residents visit the local library who loan out the large print library books. The library staff always have a chat and are very friendly and helpful.”

Tania Pell, Forget Me Not House

“Local students from Princess Trust are connecting with some of our residents and take them bowling.”

“Former relatives and friends come in to read to residents, push wheelchairs on trips, get involved in our garden party and also help write Christmas cards. Some local pubs and cafes know when we are coming and always make us welcome. One lady likes to go swimming – even if our staff aren’t keen to get in their swimsuits!”

Fidelma Tinneny, Ascot Residential Home

“Our local Tesco kindly donated fruit juices and fresh fruit to our tea party.”

Neil Dominy, Fairlawn Care Home

“Residents look forward to their time with our regular Pat-Dog visits. An enthusiastic pupil from the local school comes in every Wednesday to talk with residents and join in with activities.”

Sara Jaspan, Whetstone Hey Care Home

“We regularly write a piece for the church Newsletter and the local ‘Burford Bridge’ newspaper to keep the community updated on what’s happening in our home.”

Catherine Jefferies, The Cotswold Home

Developing Community Engagement in your Care Home

1. Map Residents’ Interests
   Consider the interests and capacities of your residents in thinking about the type of community engagement that might be valuable to them.

2. Map your Community
   Identify who in your local community might engage with your home – individuals, groups, clubs and businesses.

3. Identify a Leader
   While community engagement should be everyone’s business, it may be helpful for a member of staff, activities co-ordinator or a family member to take a lead role in brokering relationships with the local community.

4. Little Things Count
   Sometimes we focus on organising big events rather than recognising that for some residents, having just 15 minutes’ quality engagement with a friend or volunteer can mean so much more.

5. Involve People of all Ages
   Activities based on genuine interests help motivate people of different ages. Think about how you can engage with active retirees, housewives, children, and anyone who may have time and skills to donate.

6. A Little Fundraising Can go a Long Way!
   Having a small budget to cover the costs of taxis, lunches, entertainers, snacks etc. is really important.

7. Give it a Go!
   Be creative – try everything – you may be surprised at which types of engagement have the most positive impact. If something doesn’t work on one occasion, it doesn’t mean it won’t work the next time.

8. Don’t let ‘Health and Safety’ put you off!
   While we need to consider the possible hazards involved in any community involvement, the potential benefits can often outweigh the risks. Don’t let the idea of Health & Safety stop you engaging – be prepared to take positive risks.

9. Reach out to the Community via Social Media and the Press
   Twitter, Facebook, local newspapers, online forums and newsletters are all good ways to find upcoming events and share your news and good practice! Connecting in this way can help create a positive shift in public attitudes towards care homes.

10. Seek Mutually Beneficial Activities
    Community engagement is more likely to work if all partners (residents relatives, staff and the community) can enjoy the benefits. Consider what your care home might be able to offer others that might encourage them to engage more with you.
